

4th May 2005
Freq: Daily (online)
Circ.: unknown

News

RAMSAC BEATS OFF COMPETITION FROM 55 CONTENDERS TO BE AWARDED BUSINESS OF THE MONTH

Southern Business Times Recognises RAMSAC's "Tireless Effort To Demystify The World of Computers, Software and Technology"

RAMSAC, a leading IT solutions provider today announced that it has been recognised by Southern Business Times (SBT) magazine, with the Business of the Month Award. Presented by the Editor, Peter Roper at RAMSAC's Godalming offices, the accolade recognises business excellence and innovation.

Editor of the Southern Business Times, Peter Roper, explains why RAMSAC was chosen for the award; "We selected RAMSAC from an initial list of 55 contenders for its tireless efforts to demystify the world of computers, software and technology for its customers."

Roper adds; "RAMSAC was way ahead of the competition for its commitment to making IT simple. If that was not enough, the company stood out for ceaselessly campaigning for a professional body to be established for the IT industry."

With services ranging from remote telephone support, to a complete outsourced IT department, RAMSAC provides a managed service, tailored to suit the individual needs of an organisation, whether a small local business, school, charity, or a national corporation. Outsourcing all or part of the IT function takes the headache out of IT, reduces overheads and increases efficiency - allowing the business to concentrate on its core activities.

Managing Director of RAMSAC, Robert May comments, "The entire team at RAMSAC is delighted to win this award. Since we were established in 1992, our philosophy of making IT simple for our clients to understand, use and derive real business benefit from has been a focus of every project we have undertaken."