VAR Ramsac has completed a project for European health club Aspria, which involved the management and support of IT operations across all five of Aspria's European clubs in Germany and Belgium.

Ramsac oversaw the installation of a European-wide network to allow Aspria to integrate and communicate with its regional centres.

Chief executive of Aspria, Brian Morris, said: "Ramsac used its impartial industry expertise to assess our IT needs and to provide us with an IT solution that will support our current and future IT requirements."

Robert May, managing director of Ramsac, said: "We were asked to do an IT healthcheck of Aspria's European operations. The technical equipment already present and operational at the clubs was of high quality, but was not being used, therefore it was suggested that fine-tuning of the established IT infrastructure would allow the system to reach its full potential." CRN
