IT company tackles internet abuse issue

Internet misuse is costing UK businesses an estimated £1.5 billion a year and with employers now open to prosecution, IT solutions provider RAMSAC has teamed up with the Internet Watch Foundation (IWF), one of the only authorised organisations in the UK set up to deal with illegal online content, to tackle these issues.

A meeting will take place on Thursday 8 July 2004 which will provide an overview of the organisation and offer advice on how best to deal with porn in the workplace. Fay MacDonald, communications co-ordinator for the IWF says: "As the number of people using the Internet and the diversity of content available continues to grow, the mechanisms of dealing with illegal content must be better known and understood. This forum provides us with the ideal opportunity to raise awareness of our services and provide local businesses with a plan of attack to prevent Internet misuse."

Also speaking at the event will be Robert May, Managing Director at RAMSAC, who will be providing a checklist on how to prevent internet abuse and Keith Potter from Stevens & Boltons LLP Solicitors, who will be focusing on dealing with the disciplinary side of what to do when things have gone too far.

Those interested in attending should contact Melanie Wilcock, events co-ordinator at RAMSAC at melanie.wilcock@ramsac.com, or go to www.ramsac.com
